Intending to do well doesn't always result in something being well done. We recognize this to be true regarding the people of Israel when Joshua died and the era of the judges began. Before Joshua's death, the Israelites insisted they would be faithful to the Lord and never worship the gods of the Canaanites. However, as soon as Joshua and the elders who served alongside him died, Israel broke its promise and suffered the consequences of its infidelity to the Lord.

As you read Judges 2:11-23, pay attention to the cycle of sin, judgment, repentance, and restoration. Read more on this in the commentary for Session 8 in your Personal Study Guide.
